DIVERTING INCIDENT

uring the Debate on Sugar Schedule in Senate.

BAR AND TILLMAN TALK.

Massachusetts Statesman Refutes the Charge That There Was Irregularity in Connection With the Sugar Duty.

Washington, June 15.—The senate debate on the sugar schedule of the tariff bill proceeded with only one diverting incident to relieve the monotony into which the discussion has passed. This was the sharp exchange between Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts and Mr. Tillman of South Carolina, representing the two extremes of senatorial procedure.

Mr. Tillman again referred to published charges of irregularity in connection with the sugar schedule, and asserted that the senate would stand indicted before the American people if it failed to investigate the charges. Mr. Hoar calmly and impressively replied to this statement, his tone and language calculated as a rebuke. He declared that the vague charges of irregularity were not only preposterous, but infamous.

Mr. Allison, in charge of the bill, made another speech in defense of the schedule, presenting tables, which he declared proved that the sugar refiners received less protection under the new schedule than under the existing law.

Mr. Pettigrew (S. D.) spoke at length in favor of his amendment to place on a free list articles controlled by trusts, severely arraigning the various trusts.

Mr. Allen (Neb.) urged legal procedure against the trusts. Only one allusion occurred during the day, on Mr. Lindsay's amendment to place all trusts on the same basis. This was rejected—25 to 29.

Mr. McEnery (Dem., La.) voted with the Republicans in the negative, and senators Pettigrew and Mantle with the Democrats in the affirmative.

Mr. Allison incorporated in his speech a very interesting table giving the first detailed explanation from the republican side of the new sugar schedule. In commenting upon it he said: "I have the absolute calculations here and when it is said there is protection, or differential, lying in this scale running from 75 to 100 degrees, I reply that that differential is not to be seen."

Mr. Allison then presented a table showing the differential on the law of 1894, the house bill and the proposed senate schedule, from sugars of 75 degrees up to refined sugar. The main rates are shown as follows: Seventy-five degrees, differential, 1894, 56.29; house, 49.82; senate, 62.99; 88 degrees, differential 1894, 28.48; house, 17.35; senate, 24.55; 96 degrees, differential, 1894, 19.82; house, 12.33; senate, 19.83; 100 degrees, differential law 1894, 21.82; house, 12.50; senate, 20.00.

When Mr. Allison was asked why his figures differed from those of Mr. Aldrich, who made the original statement, he answered that his (Allison's) scale was based upon the price of sugars in bond in New York, while Mr. Aldrich's statement was based on the price of sugar in the Philippine islands and Egypt.

"Upon these tables I have demonstrated, at least to my own satisfaction," he added, "that the rate as it is proposed here is a less rate of duty than that in the existing law. In a good many cases I agree that it is only a fraction less, but in every case, excepting two, it is less."

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

After a Three Hours Session No Action Taken on Hawaii.

Washington, June 15.—The Republican senators were in caucus for more than three hours, and when adjournment was reached not very much progress had been made.

The Hawaiian treaty proposition was passed over to be considered at another caucus, as several senators expressed the opinion that if it was true that a treaty of annexation was to be sent in it would be absurd to enact legislation looking to the abrogation of the treaty of reciprocity.

Three propositions only were under consideration. These were: The question of what to do with the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty, the advisability of giving a bounty on beet sugar, and the question of an anti-trust amendment.

The Hawaiian treaty question was passed over, but the sugar bounty proposition was withdrawn, and the anti-trust amendment was referred to the Republican members of the judiciary committee.

CONFLICT OF AUTHORITY.

Mississippi State Board of Health Threatens to Interfere.

Washington, June 15.—Dr. Wyman, the surgeon general of the Marine hospital service has received information that the Mississippi state board of health threaten to interfere with the transportation of supplies to the government quarantine station at Ship Island.

It is understood that supplies for the station are transported by a steamer plying between Biloxi and a float anchored near the station.

Recently the treasury department declined to accept the bills of health furnished by the state board as sufficient, especially as a government station, fully equipped, is located at that point.

It is understood that the state board threatens to prevent the landing at Biloxi of the supply boat, unless the government recedes from its position as to recognizing the state board.

A Short Session.

Washington, June 15.—The house adjourned until Thursday after a session that lasted 45 minutes. The only attempt to transact business was a request by Mr. Lacey (Rep., Ia.) for unanimous consent for a bill for the relief of residents of Greer county, Oklahoma. Mr. Henry (Dem., Tex.) promptly objected and then after the usual Democratic protest against the Republican policy of not appointing committees, the house by 88 to 78 with 15 present and not voting decided to adjourn.

Pension Claims Increase.

Washington, June 15.—The war veterans are rushing forward their applications for pensions under the new administration and the increase in the volume of such business has been so extraordinary as to necessitate the detail of 30 additional clerks to the record division of the pension office to look after the claims. In the 10 days ending last Saturday the number of applications of all kinds for pensions aggregated 14,300.

To Annex Hawaii.

Washington, June 15.—The present condition in Hawaii, it is said, has had much to do with favorable consideration of the annexation treaty. The present government of Hawaii and the people who support it are very much concerned about the Japanese situation. Private communication received by Hawaiians in this city is to the effect that the Japanese at any time may take some action looking to acquisition of the islands.

Changes in Salaries.

Washington, June 15.—The fourteenth annual readjustment of classification and salaries of presidential postoffices has been completed and the changes were given out at the post-office department. There are many changes, consisting of increases and decreases of salaries. The changes in Ohio are: Gallipolis relegated second to third; Versailles third to fourth, and Shelby advanced third to second.

To Ratify Compact.

Washington, June 15.—Senator Pettigrew introduced a bill for the ratification of the compact between the states of South Dakota and Nebraska respecting the boundary between them. The bill confirms the agreement between the commissioners of the two states fixing the center of the main channel of the Missouri river as the line of division.

The Postal Congress.

Washington, June 15.—The delegates to the universal postal congress devoted the day mostly to sight seeing. The last work of the congress will soon be done, when a plenary session will be held to sign the general treaty which is now in proper form for signatures. It will take effect on Jan. 1, 1899.

The Treaty Ratified.

Washington, June 15.—The final ratification of the boundary treaty between Great Britain and Venezuela was exchanged at the state department.

Washington Notes.

The senate confirmed the appointment of Aaron Brining as postmaster of Versailles.

For the purpose of signing the Venezuelan treaty Senator Andrade brought along the magnificent golden penholder with its eagle quill and diamond studded heart that had been used last February to sign the original drafts of the treaties.

Another Echo of World's Fair.

Chicago, June 15.—A bill was filed to foreclose a trust deed for $190,934 on the property of the Cheltenham beach. The deed is dated June 5, 1891, and was given to secure a loan. The company was organized in 1891 to create a summer resort and bathing beach on Lake Michigan just south of Jackson park. About 160 acres were purchased and a hotel and minor buildings erected. The place was never a financial success.

Dispatches Seized.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 15.—Dr. Vele, chief surgeon of the Cuban insurgent army, commanded by General Garcia, arrived at Rio Buena, this island, accompanied by 11 Cubans. They had escaped from the province of Santiago de Cuba in an open boat, and brought with them dispatches for the Cuban junta at New York. These dispatches were seized by the Jamaican officials.

Grand Masonic Meeting.

London, June 15.—The Masonic meeting at the Royal Albert hall in commemoration of the queen's diamond jubilee was a notable function. The hall was packed by over 10,000 Free Masons in gorgeous regalia. The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught arrived at 4 o'clock preceded by trumpeters.

Another Order For Silver.

New York, June 15.—The steamship Saale will take out 275,000 ounces of silver.

HELD FOR WIFE DESERTION.

The Gay Husband Displays His Wealth in a Rather Startling Manner, but He Is Required to Furnish Bond.

Mount Vernon, Ills., June 15.—The young millionaire, James E. Berry, was arraigned before Judge Wells on a charge of wife abandonment, preferred by his new wife, Mrs. Sadie Miller Berry. The case was set for trial next Wednesday and Berry was required to give bond for $300 for his appearance. Great excitement ensued when Berry objected to furnishing bond and began displaying all kinds of bills and saying that he would furnish the bond himself without the aid of other people and this not being permitted he made things lively by tearing a $500 bill in two while the spectators stood struck with awe. Several friends signed the bond.

DECLARES HIMSELF.

President McKinley Stands by His Guests, Especially the Newspaper Men.

Asheville, N. C., June 15.—An unexpected incident of President McKinley's visit developed when it became known to newspaper men accompanying the party that permission to enter Biltmore House, George W. Vanderbilt's splendid mansion, had been refused to them while extended to other members of the party.

Mr. Vanderbilt is abroad and his representative, Charles McNamee, is with him.

In the absence of both the estate is governed by E. J. Harding, said to be an Englishman by birth. When waited on by the local committee of arrangements a day or two ago for permission for the president and party to enter Biltmore House, he objected strongly to receiving any members of the party other than the president and his cabinet, and the ladies with them. He even refused permission to Manager McKissick of the Battery Park hotel, in charge of the party here, and in the course of conversation had with two members of the committee, said: "Mr. Vanderbilt spits on newspaper notoriety and so do I." After this there was nothing for the local committee to do but withdraw.

So the matter rested till the president arrived and J. Addison Porter, his secretary, was told of the incident. He must have informed the president, for later Mr. Harding was called up on the telephone by Mr. Porter and asked if it were true that newspaper men would not be admitted to the mansion. Porter was told that it was and he informed Mr. Harding that the president considered the newspaper men were his invited guests on the trip and that they were as much a contingent of the party as members of the cabinet. Furthermore, Mr. Porter notified Mr. Harding that the president had authorized him to say that if the newspaper men were barred from the mansion he would not step his foot inside the estate.

This brought things to a crisis and Mr. Harding capitulated with the best grace possible and the newspaper men were admitted to the mansion on the same footing as the president and his cabinet.

Before going to Biltmore, Representative Pearson persuaded Mr. McKinley to attend a meeting at the Young Men's Institute hall of colored people, the gift of George W. Vanderbilt.

The hall was filled to its utmost capacity with colored people, comprising the laboring classes as well as local colored politicians and their wives and children.

With Congressman Pearson on one side for 10 minutes he shook hands at a rapid rate with all who were presented to him. It was very warm work. Presently the president called for air and seven colored men fanned him while the handshaking went on.

At Biltmore the luxuries of the library were lingered over with especial delight. Mrs. McKinley was given a handsome bouquet from Mr. Vanderbilt's conservatory as she left the chateau. The drive continued over the French broad boundaries of the estate, from the river cottage to the entrance lodge and the Biltmore incident was closed.

The train was taken at Biltmore station and the journey to Washington resumed at 6 p. m. Secretary Alger was indisposed from the extreme heat of the past two days, but left Asheville somewhat recuperated.

Objected to a Reduction.

New Haven, June 15.—On the announcement of a 10 per cent general reduction of wages at the Worcester cycle shops in Middletown, Conn., 100 men went on strike. There was a reduction of wages some time ago at the shops which gave employment now to about 400 hands and to about 700 when running on full time.

General Porter Entertained.

Paris, June 15.—The United States ambassador, General Horace Porter, was a guest at the luncheon which the minister for foreign affairs, M. Hanotaux, gave in honor of Crown Prince Ito of Japan, and other foreign representatives who are on their way to attend the diamond jubilee of Queen Victoria.

IN THE DARKNESS

The Flucky Dauntless Runs Ashore While Leaving For Cuba.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 15.—A special from Key West says: The Dauntless has left on another expedition. After taking on 33 Cubans she attempted to go through the northwest passage about 10 p. m. and ran ashore. Assistance was sent for and the tugs Clyde and Childs pulled her off.

About 4:30 the Dauntless changed her course in returning to the harbor and passing Marblehead put to sea. The schooner Adams took 40 tons of merchandise from the Biscayne and went to sea to meet the Dauntless.

Fisk University Exercises.

Nashville, June 15.—Fully 3,000 people gathered in the auditorium to witness the exercises prepared for the celebration of Fisk university day. Among those on the stage were many distinguished citizens from New York and New England, of the board of control, and Mrs. Fisk, the widow of the founder. Dr. Howe of Norwich, Conn., Rev. Dr. Stinson of New York, Dr. Tead of Somerville, Mass., and Rev. Dr. Bridgeman of Boston, were among the speakers.

Trouble in Amen Corner.

Mansfield, O., June 15.—The delegates to the Lutheran synod have become thoroughly acquainted with the business on hand and President Hanna is frequently compelled to call for order during the session, so animated do the discussions become. He raps with the gavel and with his stentorian voice, "There's trouble in the amen corners," never fails to cause a ripple of laughter to break over the synod and restore order.

Display of Flags.

Pittsburg, June 15.—It is a coincidence that flag day and the first day of the national council of the Junior Order United American Mechanics should be on the same day, and this fact makes the day one of special importance to members of the American Mechanics. The national colors, and they alone, are to be seen on most of the buildings. About 200 delegates have arrived in the city.

Pressmen Meet.

Detroit, June 15.—Men who manipulate printing presses from nearly all the larger cities of the United States gathered in the Griswold House and enjoyed a social reception preliminary to the ninth annual convention of the International Printing Pressmen's union. Refreshments were served.

Virginia Soldiers in Camp.

London, June 15.—A special dispatch from Funchal, island of Madeira, off the west coast of Morocco, says that on the arrival there of the British steamship Scott, which left Table bay (Cape Town) on June 2, for Southampton, it was announced that Barney Barnato, the South Africa "Diamond King," who was among the passengers, had committed suicide by leaping overboard. His body was recovered.

RAILS SPREAD.

Fatal Accident on the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad.

Richmond, Ind., June 15.—Train No. 2, southbound express on the Grand Rapids and Indiana railway, was derailed at 3 p. m. at Stone station, 30 miles north of here. The rails are said to have spread, ditching the engine, tender, mail and baggage cars. The smoker was partially derailed. The engine was totally demolished, instantly killing Engineer David Kramer, 50, of Fort Wayne. He did not leave his seat and was found under the engine.

Fireman Grabel of Fort Wayne was seriously injured. He fell under the tender. Baggage-master Martin Minch of Fort Wayne was also injured. S. W. Mundy, the express messenger of Grand Rapids, was slightly injured. The smoker and the other coaches were not damaged. No passengers were hurt. Heat is supposed to have caused the spreading of the rails.

Another Bomb Found.

Paris, June 15.—The police found a second tube filled with powder and scrap iron near the scene of Sunday's explosion. They are of the opinion that the miscreant is probably the man who placed explosive tubes of a similar character in the Place de la Concorde during the recent visit of Emperor Nicholas.

Attention Oil Men!

"HOW TO SAVE TIME ON DRILLING WELLS!"

You must know there is a big loss of Power from your belts slipping. Well, we can stop that and so can you. If you will use GREEN SEAL BELT DRESSING on your belts.

Read what those drillers say:
INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Feb. 20, '97.
Your Dressing is just the thing; it covers wear on machinery, and with it we can run a belt that would tear in two if we had to make it tight enough to hold without the Dressing. It is not a good thing for belt manufacturers, but it is a "DAISY" for the users of belts. Besides we have no slipping now.

Yours,
GILCHRIST & GOLDRICH.
We send it out on trial and guarantee it to do all we claim for it.
Write us for a can of it.

WHEELER'S NERVE VITALIZER

RENNVILLE, Mich.—E. A. Smith, engineer for F. N. Wright & Co., this city, resides on the N. Y. C. & H. K. Ry., cars. He can tell many amusing instances of the rail in the early days; but pretend to speak of his recent experience with Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer. Mr. Smith is advanced in years and his trouble has been serious and of long standing that it is a constitutional. He doctored and all the different kinds of medicine suggested for the trouble, without any benefit.
He was advised to take Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer, a nerve preparation which has been received with much favor in Steam County, and which has performed its remarkable cures. The effect of it was highly satisfactory, not only in relieving his nervous system, but also in correcting symptoms of kidney trouble which he had. It certainly is to be hoped that a wedge of Mr. Smith's experience may lead other sufferers to use this valuable preparation.

Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer has many advantages not possessed by any other form of medication. It is entirely free from morphine, opium, cocaine, and the stimulating drugs, which are so persistently advertised. Such drugs are ruinous and should be avoided as pernicious.

FOOT CRUSHED.

Six-Year-Old Charles Hodde Falls Under a Freight Train.

Claims One of His Companions Pushed Him Under—Foot Amputated by Drs.

About 8 o'clock last evening a six-year-old boy had one of his feet crushed beneath the wheels of a freight train in the O. & E. yards near the O. H. & D. crossing.

The victim of the deplorable accident was Charles, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hodde, of 1058 Revere avenue.

He had been sent to south Main street on an errand, and was returning with several companions through the O. & E. yards as a west bound freight train was passing on that road.

Stories differ as to how the lad met with the accident. His own story, told last night, and repeated to-day, is that one of his companions pushed him toward the moving train, and that he fell and one leg was caught beneath the wheels.

Another story is that the boys were running along beside the train and collided, knocking the Hodde lad down, while a woman who claims to have witnessed the accident states that the Hodde boy attempted to climb onto the side ladder of the freight car but missed the step with his foot and slipped under the car.

It was found that the boy's left foot was terribly mangled about the ankle, and he was removed to his home, in Groesbeck's ambulance. Drs. Kahle & Kahle were summoned, and upon making an examination of the mutilated limb found that amputation was necessary.

The little fellow stood the operation very well and to-day is getting along as well as could be expected.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the Best and Most Popular.

"We sell more of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than of all others combined," write Messrs. Kerr & Sons, druggists, of Mars, Pa. They also say: "The sale of it is something phenomenal. We have sold two gross this winter, selling as high as six bottles in one morning to as many different customers. This remedy has proved particularly successful in croupy affections. Our customers invariably pronounce it the best they can find, and we know of no case where it has failed to give satisfaction." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by Melville, the druggist, old postoffice corner; C. W. Heister, 58 public square.

Watson's Answer.

LIMA, OHIO, June 14, '97.

Editor Times Democrat:

DEAR SIR:—In your paper of June 7th I asked for proof from the Bible to show that the soul of man is immortal.

Two gentlemen made attempts to answer my question. In both cases they referred me to the 15th chapter of I Corinthians.

As you will notice, in this chapter Paul proves the resurrection beyond a doubt.

From the 1st verse to the 11th he proves Christ's resurrection; from the 12th to the 20th he shows that the resurrection of Christ is the keynote of all religion.

From the 20th to the 34th he proves our resurrection from the dead a necessity; and from the 35th to the end of the chapter, he shows the manner in which we are resurrected.

I fail to find any proof of an immortal soul in this argument, but on the contrary I find a strong chain of evidence linked in harmony with the teachings of the Bible saying, the soul that sinneth it shall die.

In the 16th and 18th verses we read: "For if the dead rise not, then is Christ not risen, and if Christ be not risen, your faith is in vain, ye are yet in your sins; then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished."

What! The soul immortal and yet perishable? It cannot be.

Again the apostle says in the 22nd verse: "In Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Note the reading: "Even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Not, even so in Christ are all made alive.

Does Paul ignore this immortal soul of man, and frame this argument, and talk so seriously of this frail body of man that dies and returns to dust?

No. He means, and says, the man, body and soul die in Adam and in Christ shall be made alive (at his coming). 23rd verse.

In the 45th, 46th and 47th verses we find the following:

"And so it is written, the first man Adam was made a living soul, the last Adam was made a quickening spirit. Howbeit that was not first that was spiritual but that which is natural and afterward that which is spiritual. The first man was of the earth earthy."

"The second man is the Lord from Heaven."

Adam and we his posterity are the first man and Paul says we are of the earth earthy; but Christ the second man is spirit spiritual.

Does this prove that man has an immortal soul?

Then the 53rd verse:

"For this corruption must put on incorruption and this mortal must put on immortality."

This verse explicitly tells us that the body is corruptible must put on incorruption; and this soul is mortal and must put on immortality.

Now when does this change take place?

THE ALUMNI

Of the Lima High School Meet in Reunion

At the Handsome Home of Dr. and Mrs. Baxter—An Elegant Banquet Served.

The reception and banquet given by the Alumni Association at the home of Dr. Baxter last evening, proved a most delightful affair.

This was the first reunion that the Alumni Association had held for ten years, and from the success of the affair last night, and from the enthusiasm displayed, only one year will intervene before the next reunion.

The night could not be more delightful, and the handsome residence and elegant lawn looked beautiful as it was brilliantly illuminated with lanterns, many colored lights and flambour.

About two hundred guests were present. Each one, upon arriving, was warmly greeted by the reception committee, composed of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Baxter, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Seifridge, Mr. and Mrs. George Vicary, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Parmenter, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Townsend, and Misses Kate Freeman, Sallie Cross, Margaret Holdridge and Will Boone.

The exercises were opened by the orchestra playing a pretty selection, when Dr. Collins presented mayor Baxter, who warmly greeted the present and past graduates of the Lima High School.

Dr. Collins on behalf of the association, extended their thanks for the hearty welcome and the generosity of the host and hostess.

Dr. Collins then welcomed the class of '97 into the association, and Curtis McIntire eloquently responded on behalf of the class.

A short business session was held, and W. K. Boone was chosen president; Miss Bessie Reicheiderfer, vice president; Frank Sealts, secretary, and Miss Mildred Rumble, treasurer.

An interesting musical programme was then rendered.

THE ELKS PARADE

Attracted Hundreds of People Onto the Streets.

The Elks parade was started from south Main street at 12 o'clock to-day and was the chief attraction that brought hundreds of people onto the streets in the boiling hot sun. The parade was headed by the Lima police force and the city band, followed by carriages in which rode mayor Baxter and the local officers of the order. Following the carriages were members of the lodge, about one hundred strong, each wearing the conventional silk hat. The Elks performance to-night promises to be the best the order has ever given.

HANK TALBOT.

Wm. Bentley would kill him, asked permission of Bentley Stogor to stay overnight with him.
"We intend to show to you that on the next morning, Tuesday, March 23, 1897, he arose in the morning and went up town, before breakfast, hoping his enemy would be gone by the time he returned.

"We intend to show to you that when he did return in about an hour and while peacefully standing in the house he was again assaulted by Wm. Bentley, who came at him with an open razor threatening to cut his throat, and, having no possible means of escape without increasing his danger and after entreating him to desist, he was compelled to shoot his antagonist to save his own life.

"We also will show you that William Bentley was a habitual drunkard and when under the influence of strong drink was very quarrelsome and dangerous; that he always carried a razor in a pocket inside of his shirt and always wore his shirt open so that it might be easily got at in case he wanted it (which was very often).

"We will show you that, in the south, he was an outlaw, that he served five years in the Coal City penitentiary for cutting a man and that he was shot by the sheriff in Louisiana while trying to evade arrest; that he was so badly wounded that he was taken to a hospital to recuperate and while yet at the hospital he escaped and came to Lima, where he remained till his death.

"We will show you that while in Lima he was always in trouble; that on numerous occasions he threatened to cut different persons and did cut several, that he has threatened to beat the brains out of persons who happened to cross him; that he has threatened to cut the head off of persons and would brandish knives, axes, butcher knives, razors or any other weapon that chanced to be within his reach when irritated.

"In fact, gentlemen, we intend to show you that he was of a depraved nature, always in trouble, and a man who would not hesitate to take life under very small provocation; that he intended to take the life of the defendant and would have done so had not the defendant got the drop on him and thus saved himself."

When Mr. Rogers had finished, Mr. Ridenour said:

"We expect that the evidence will show nothing of the kind. It will show that the trouble was all over Della Jones, that when the shooting was done Bentley had no razor in his hand—that he was sitting down when shot. It will be shown that Bentley and Simons both came from the south and that both were vicious. That the circumstances surrounding the case were such that the act could not be one of self defense."

Judge Richie instructed the jury-men as to their duties and dismissed them until 8 o'clock this morning.

H. M. TALBOT'S TESTIMONY.

Hank Talbot was the first witness called. He testified as follows:
I am 49 years old. Have lived in Allen county 32 years. Knew Ben Simons about two years. Knew Wm. Bentley who lived in a three room house on south Tanner street near Hog creek. Simons and Bentley lived in the same house. Two beds were in west room. Room divided by curtain. Cooking stove was in the room and west of curtain. A window was near Simons' bed. The door led into his room from porch. Bentley and wife occupied the same room. A window was on north side of room and near foot of their bed. The house was rented by Wm. Bentley, who had lived there about a year. Ben Simons and Della Jones went there after he returned from the work house last November.

About 8 30 o'clock the night of the 22nd I was sitting on my bed in my room, when Simons came in. Della Jones was in bed crying. Bentley said: "Simons, if you want to stay here you must not whip that woman in here." Bentley's wife pushed him into his own room.

Simons said to Bentley, "I pay rent here." Simons struck Della Jones that same evening.

About 8 30 Simons left the house, taking his guitar with him. Bentley was in his own room. Bentley said nothing more. There was beer drunk in the house but no one was intoxicated except Della Jones.

I went to bed about 3 o'clock. Ben Simons came back about 9 30. Previous to that no bad feeling had existed between Simons and Bentley.

Next morning Bentley got up about 5 o'clock, made a fire and went to bed again. Simons got up, dressed and went up town. Bentley, after getting up the second time, went out and got some beer in a bucket, came back and sat down in rocking chair. Simons came back and stood by the stove, ordered Della Jones to draw his trunk out of Bentley's room, and said to Della Jones: "What did you do with that fifty cents I gave you last night?" Bentley said: "Don't start that fuss again." Simons stood near the door. Bentley was still sitting in the chair.

Simons answered: "Don't talk to me, you, you treated me like a dirty dog last night," and shot three times at Bentley. He stood in the partition door. Bentley said nothing. When he was shot he staggered and fell and said, "pard, go for the doctor. I am gone."

One shot went into side of window. Two shots hit Bentley. Simons then backed out onto the porch and shot at Della Jones. Bullet missed her. Sent his boy after the doctor. Bentley did not live over three minutes after being shot.

Simons left and went east. Simons shot with a revolver. Never saw him have a gun before.

CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Mr. Copeland cross-examined witness. Witness said: Bentley had the house rented from Higgins. Della Jones and Simons rented their room from Bentley.

On night of 22nd the trouble occurred about 8 30. It was dark and after supper. I and my two boys, Bentley, Ida Travis, Emma Johnson, Bentley Stogor and Tenney Jackson were all there.

Simons came in about half-past seven until he whipped Della and went out. Bentley ordered him to take her out if he wanted to whip her.

Simons ordered him to shut up. Bentley asked them not to have a fuss. Bentley was pushed into his own room by his wife.

Simons did not draw a razor as I saw. Ben got his guitar, went up town and returned about half-past nine. Bentley made no threats while Simons was gone. Ben, on returning, was asked to drink but refused.

Bentley got up and made a fire. His wife and Della Jones got up next. Bentley got up and went after some beer. Simons got up, dressed and left about half-past six and returned in about 20 minutes.

Shooting occurred about half-past seven. Ben, when he returned, began to fuss with Della and asked for the 50 cents he gave her and threatened to whip her.

He then said to Bentley: "You treated me like a dog last night." Did not see gun morning of the shooting.

I stood about two feet from Simons, who shot over my shoulder. Didn't know I testified at preliminary hearing that I could not see the gun on account of poor eyesight. Didn't see Bentley have a razor the night before.

Bentley had no weapons. Bentley did not reach up and take a razor out of pants pocket when he saw Simons enter the room. Bentley only said: "Go for a doctor. I'm shot."

Bentley did not say, "this is the way I was to die; I was either to shoot someone, or someone shoot me." Bentley sat about four feet from coal box. Della Jones and myself are the only ones who saw the shooting. Bentley was in his own room. Bentley's wife had gone to work.

Bullet hole in the door was about five feet three inches from the floor. That was not the first shot fired. Bentley and I were not especial friends. Only had trouble with Simons once, when he was going to hit me with a cup.

Was not drunk. My boys did not have to put me to bed. When we had the fuss Bentley did not give me a razor. Never asked Della Jones to go away with me. I said: "Della, if you go and perjure yourself you will get a twenty-spot."

Witness said that he had been in the Ohio penitentiary for pocket-picking, and further said that Simons was working back of the Parmenter building, and got home about 6 o'clock, and had whipped Della Jones two times that evening.

RE-EXAMINATION.

On re-examination by the prosecutor Talbot testified that Della Jones ran when shooting occurred and jumped through a window. She was standing in the partition door when Simons fired the fourth shot. She threw herself under the bed, then jumped up and got into bed with my boys. She was scared and knocked out a window and jumped through it.

On cross-examination he said Della ran around in the room while Simons was shooting. She crawled under my bed. The shots were fired close together.

On re-examination again witness said that Simons stood about eight feet from Bentley when he shot. Bentley's hands were clasped and he had no weapon. They were not in striking distance of each other. Simons could have walked away from Bentley; his way was free to escape. He was there about five minutes before he began to shoot.

Cross-examination—Talbot said that all cooking was done on his stove, which was in Bentley's room.

J. C. GRONLEY

was next called, and identified a plate as one that he had made of the house where Bentley was killed, which was entered as an exhibit.

G. B. FINROCK

testified that he lived at 363 south Tanner street. At the time of the shooting he was sitting at home in his dining room, lived about 100 feet from Bentley's house; saw man standing inside of the house shooting. Identified the defendant as the one who shot, saw Simons running east. He then went to boiler shop and telephoned to police.

MRS. FINROCK

testified Her testimony was substantially a corroboration of that of her husband.

Medad and Dean Talbot testified. Their testimony was substantially the same as that of their father, Henry M. Talbot, the first witness.

testified that he knew the defendant, and also Della Jones. Had lived at home on south Tanner street for over a year. On day before the killing saw trouble between Simons and Bentley. Simons came in and said to Della, "You are drunk, are you?" In same room. When Bentley said, "Don't beat Della in here," I went into the room. Simons said, "Don't I pay rent here?" What in—have you to do with this woman? If I beat her what will you do?" Bentley, drawing a razor said, "Start it and I will show you." Simons' hands were in his pocket. I separated them. This occurred about 7 o'clock. Simons got a guitar and left. Next morning when witness woke up he heard Simons asking about 50 cents; heard Simons take two or three steps and say, "You—of—come on," then heard two reports of a revolver. Then soon afterwards heard three more shots. Did not see him.

KIT CARSON

testified. I lived at 1235 east Spring street. I was selling hot lunch on the night of the 22nd of March. Saw Ben Simons that night on Wayne street, near Miles Collins' saloon. He asked if I had seen Ida Mose. He said that Bentley had drawn a razor, and that he would get even with that "d—nigger." I warned him not to have any trouble. He said "You and the babies in the cradle will hear all about it when I kill him. Bentley hasn't liked me for three months." He left me standing on the corner.

Have known Simons about six years. met him at Atlanta, Ga. I told him he would be arrested; he said, "the d— policemen can't catch anyone."

TOMMY JACKSON

Testified that he knew Ben Simons and Wm. Bentley. He came from the south with them to work on the O. S. & R. I was at Bentley's night of 22d of March. Was there when the fuss occurred. Ben Simons hit Della Jones. Bentley ordered him not to fuss. Simons said, how will you help yourself? Bentley said, you start and I will show you how. He had a razor in his hand. He made no attempt to cut him. Simons left saying he would get even with him. Saw Simons later going back to the house. Advised him not to go.

Policeman Bacome testified that he arrested Ben Simons on the tank farm. His hand was in his pocket. Took revolver from him and identified it. When arrested four loads were in the gun. Got a horse and buggy and brought him to town. On coming back, Simons said he shot Bentley in self-defense for drawing a razor on him the night before. When questioned again Simons said Bentley drew a razor also in the morning.

Henry Reel testified that he knew Simons. About two months before the shooting Simons secured a loan on a revolver which he identified as the one taken from Simons when arrested by the police. Simons came to my store about 6 o'clock on the evening of the 22nd and traded a guitar for his revolver. He got no cartridges.

testified that he was at the preliminary hearing. He visited Bentley's home about a week after the murder. Bullet hole in window was about two feet from the floor. Bullet mark in door casing bent slightly upwards. To make this a man, would have to stand on the porch or on the ground.

testified that she was the wife of William Bentley, deceased. Saw no trouble when I was home. Bentley was not drunk. Was away from home when shooting occurred, but came home at 7 30. Early that morning Bentley got forty cents from her to buy beer.

At 12 30 court adjourned until tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock. The attorneys requested that the testimony be extended so it could be used to-morrow, and in order for the stenographer to have time to get it up the afternoon would have to be used in copying the testimony.

Hark! All through the house rings the awful sound, once heard never forgotten, the sound of a child's crowing cough. There is no time to lose. Croup is a monster that will not be trifled with. Then is the time that if you have neglected to provide yourself with a bottle of Dr. Harkness' Cough and Croup Medicine you fully realize how careless and neglectful you have been. THE PANAMA HAT.

Pretty Mrs. Cloverdale had put her foot down. It was a very dainty little foot, incased in a white canvas ottine, but the fact that it was small and attractively shod made the difference in the force with which it emphasized a decision.

Mrs. Cloverdale was reclining in a seat wood rocker, and her tiny foot carefully reached the floor, but at that moment she had rocked farward and had brought down narrow toe and high heel simultaneously upon the cool Japanese matting half hid the piquancy of her beauty.

"Once and for all, Molly, dear," he had said, "No. Under no circumstances will I ever give my consent to your marriage with that other fellow."

Although Molly knew her mistress well enough to understand that it was quite useless for her to lead further, her importunities did not cease with the coming down of the little foot. With a pained expression upon her rose leaf face and ears in her voice she defended her doted Andrew to the best of her power.

"Oh, no, Mrs. Cloverdale," she exclaimed, "not that! Andrew is not a ne'er do well. He is honest, and he is willing to work, but he has been unfortunate. I am sure that together we could get along admirably. There is a vacancy, you know, in the stable since Barney, the second groom, left, and—"

"Nonsense, girl," cried Mrs. Cloverdale, taking up a fan from the table at her side and beginning to wave it with some energy. "Do you think I would permit you to marry that boy? There is young Alexander, the son of Captain Silvester's armer, for instance. He would be much more suitable husband for you."

"But I do not love him," objected the girl in all innocence, just as though love were a necessary adjunct to marriage in these days.

"Whereas I'm very, very fond of Andrew, and he simply worships me. We were playmates as children, you know, and I can never forget when Andrew risked his own life to save mine the time that I fell into the river and was being carried by the current down to the rapids. He was waiting for his answer now, and do so want it to be 'Yes.'"

The girl's mistress continued to answer herself, unmoved by these entreaties.

"I know what is best for you, Molly," she said. "The answer that you will give is 'No.' Someday you will thank me for insisting upon it."

Then it was that the tears that had been in the young woman's eyes began to flow, and, with a handkerchief pressed to her eyes and her young, supple frame shaking with sobs, she left the room.

The relation that Mrs. Cloverdale bore to her maid and companion was, as may have been inferred, not merely that of employer. Servants were not in the habit of seeking either counsel or consent from their mistresses when they desire to take upon their shoulders the matrimonial yoke, and had Molly's allegiance been measured simply by the wages of $2 a month that she received, she would in all probability have sought the village parsonage with Andrew by her side and have told Mrs. Cloverdale of the momentous step she had taken when it was all over.

Molly was a native of the Berkshire hills. She had been born on the farm that had belonged to the Cloverdales for generations. Her father had tilled its soil and her mother had churned the cream of its Alderney cows into yellow butter, and then both father and mother had gone the way of all flesh, leaving Molly, a budding little pink and white beauty of 13 or thereabout.

That summer Mr. David Cloverdale of the old established firm of Cloverdale & Lowry, leather merchants, brought to the farm his young wife, and the young wife, being told of how affairs stood, agreed with her somewhat elderly husband that Molly must be taken care of. While it was not an adoption in the legal sense of the word, it amounted to the same thing. Molly was given a fair education, and then she was taken into the household as something a little above a high class servant.

"With her beauty," said Mrs. Cloverdale as the girl left the room, "she might marry a duke."

Then the pretty mistress of this charming old stone house in the very heart of the Berkshires put down her fan, abstracted something from between the pages of a book on the table by her side, rose from her place in the deep bent wood rocker, and passing out into the hall, stopped for a moment to appropriate a parasol and snatch up another object, which she deftly hid among the voluminous folds of the white muslin gown that she had gathered up so as to free those small feet of hers for a walk across the lawn.

Tripping lightly down the stone steps of the mansion, she passed beneath an umbrageous arbor that shaded the smooth, close cropped field that spread away down a gradual decline to where a row of graceful, light green willows told of the presence of a stream of water. The walk was not a long one, nor did she linger for any time on the brink of the gurgling, miniature river that flowed through the Cloverdale domain. For an instant she stooped, as if to gather something from among the reeds that line the shore, giving one a picture similar to that of Pharaoh's daughter rescuing the infant Moses, but when she again stood upright there was nothing left in her hands save her parasol. On re-entering the mansion the sound of a voice angrily raised reached her ears.

"My panama hat!" the master of the manse was shouting. "My panama hat! That is the third I have lost in the last eight days! John! Thomas! Henry! My hat! Where is it?"

"Great heavens!" exclaimed Mrs. Cloverdale, coming in at the moment. "What are you making such a commotion about, my dear? Do you want to arouse the whole neighborhood?"

"My hat! I want my hat!" cried the husband irritably.

"Surely," she went on, "it is not because you can't find it—you, who are so absentminded? What does it matter? The price you pay for your hats is not so great."

Mr. Cloverdale paid no attention whatever to this fling. With all the servants in the house aiding him he continued his search in every corner, while Mrs. Cloverdale resumed her seat in her bent wood rocker, her eyes fixed upon a Dresden clock on a nearby cabinet.

Adjoining the Cloverdale estate was a farm belonging to Captain Adrian Silvester, a young Englishman, who, having made a fortune for himself in cattle breeding in the west, had for the last three years been spending it recklessly. He had purchased this old homestead in the Berkshires, and each summer he spent a few weeks there, usually to recuperate from a round of dissipation that would have sent a man of less sturdy constitution to his grave. The stream that meandered through the Cloverdale property wound its way later across the broad acres of Captain Silvester's farm and a little beyond emptied itself into the river.

At a point on this ribbon of running water some distance below where Mrs. Cloverdale had stooped for a minute over the reeds that fringed its brink, young Andrew, the lover of poor heartbroken Molly, was sitting patiently upon a fallen tree trunk, holding a rough fishing pole and watching a cork that bobbed about on the bosom of the feeble stream.

It was a cool, shady nook in which he had thus ensconced himself, and though he had been fishing there for upward of an hour without so much as a nibble to reward him he showed no sign of discontent. He was waiting now for Molly's return, more than half fearing that her answer, which he knew depended upon Mrs. Cloverdale's decision, would be unfavorable. He was satisfied that Mrs. Cloverdale did not approve of him, and he could hardly imagine her granting this one great desire of his heart. If she would not, he told himself that he would urge Molly to wed him without her mistress's permission. He had $1 saved from some wages that he had earned during harvesting that year, and with that to rely upon what might they not do?

Overhead the birds chirruped gayly. On the water the flies darted about merrily. He could hear the katydids singing amid the stubble of the wheatfield across the stream, and in an adjoining field every now and then, through the thicket of trees, he caught glimpses of cows contentedly browsing. All his surroundings breathed a peaceful, satisfied happiness, and, safely assured of Molly's deep devotion and untiring affection, why should he be otherwise than happy himself?

Presently there came to his ears the sound of footsteps, measured and slow, crushing among leaves and snapping fallen twigs. Some one was coming along the path that skirted the stream. It was not Molly, he knew. She would come from the other direction, and, as it was not Molly, what did he care for the personality of the stroller? So indifferent was he indeed that he did not even raise his head until this invader of his solitude was at his back and speaking to him.

"Andrew, my son," he said, "why are you idling here? Why are you not up yonder with the villagers who are searching for the body of poor Alec, the son of your neighbor, who was drowned last night in the stream?"

It was Father O'Malley, the village priest, who had thus come upon him—Father O'Malley, who had no sympathy with idlers.

"I don't care to hunt for dead bodies," replied Andrew. "Besides, I've got to wait here for some one."

The good priest shrugged his shoulders.

"It's lucky you are so well off," he added, with a grain of sarcasm in his voice. "There is a reward of $2, I believe, for the person who shall discover the poor lad's corpse."

Andrew made no reply. He simply drew in his line and threw it out again farther toward the middle of the stream, and Father O'Malley walked on with his hands behind his back.

The next minute there was a rustle among the bushes near by, and Molly, who had taken a somewhat circuitous route to where the willows marked the water's edge, so that she might not be observed by the other servants of the house, stood before her lover, flushed and beautiful, but with teardrops glistening on the lashes of both her eyes. In an instant Andrew had dropped his pole, had sprung to his feet and was holding her in his arms. Then their lips met in a long, passionate kiss.

Molly's pink eyelids and flooded lashes told to Andrew the expected story.

"Come, Molly, dear," he said soothingly; "don't take on so. Sit down by me here, and we'll talk it all over. After all, she isn't your mother, and what does it matter what she says?"

But Molly could not be brought to look upon the situation in that light. Even the $1 which Andrew drew proudly from his pocket and displayed to her did not affect her in the least.

"It would not last us a week," she murmured, "and then what should we do, with neither of us in a position to earn any more?"

Andrew hung his head in thought. "I know," he said suddenly looking up. "I know. There is a reward of $2 offered for the finding of poor Alec Darby's body—Alec Darby that was drowned while bathing in this very stream last night. I'll go and find it. I think maybe it's caught in the reeds and rushes up above here, and then," he went on, his eyes sparkling, "we will be rich enough to go wherever we like."

Even as he spoke Molly, pointing to an object floating down with the current, exclaimed:

"Look, look! It is a hat, Andrew! Perhaps it is that of poor Alec, the drowned man."

Andrew followed the direction of her dainty finger, and saw, as she had said, a hat of fine, white straw, with crown only touching the water, the brim being upward.

"Take your pole, Andrew," she cried, "and bring it into shore. Who knows? It is possible that he killed himself on purpose and has left a note under the lining, as shipwrecked sailors put notes into bottles."

The rustic obeyed her command, and the girl lifted the dripping object from the stream.

Eagerly she ran her hand beneath the leather sweat band, and then she uttered a cry of surprised delight.

"As I said," she shouted, "there is a note!"

As she unfolded it Andrew, evidencing as much excitement as his pliant nature was capable of, gazed eagerly over her shoulders to get the first glimpse of the writing.

What they read together was this: MY DREAM WAS—Toward 8 o'clock in the evening, Mr. C. was walking on a path after dinner. We will have an hour together.

Instantly Molly thrust the missive into her pocket, while a blush mantled her fair cheek. Could it be possible, she asked herself, that her mistress, whom she always looked upon as the very soul of virtue, could be carrying on a liaison with Captain Silvester? It was really too horrible to contemplate. And Andrew had seen the note too. She was filled with shame for her benefactress and scarcely knew what to say or do. It was Mr. Cloverdale's hat that had been used to carry the note from the wife to her lover. She recognized it now. It was a panama hat, and she remembered that he had bought two new ones in 14 of a week.

Leaving Andrew to his own reflections, Molly hastened to the house. Finding Mrs. Cloverdale alone in the library, resting as usual in the bent wood rocker, her eyes fixed with an expression now of some impatience on the hands which traveled so slowly over the face of the Dresden clock, she placed the note she had found in her mistress's lap without so much as a word of explanation.

Mrs. Cloverdale changed color for a moment as she recognized it, but she was strangely self possessed. She realized instantly what service Molly had done her, and she was not slow to reward it.

"Little one," she said, with the greatest apparent indifference, "I have been thinking. Perhaps I was a trifle too cruel. After all, one should marry according to the dictates of one's heart. I will see that Andrew is given the vacant position in the stables, and as for the wedding—what do you say to the first Wednesday in October?"—Spare Moments.

Hints on Training a Dog.

The first thing to be taught is obedience—to come in when called. Get a strong cord line and fasten one end to the pup's collar, holding the other in the hand. Then call him, and enforce the call with a sharp twitch. Do not yank him, and do not raise your voice or be violent in any way. The chances are that, feeling the cord for the first time, he will struggle violently to escape. If so, sit or stand perfectly still until he is tired and stops; then call him again, enforcing the order as before, the idea being to teach him what the words mean, and, of course, no punishment is possible until the order is perfectly understood and willfully disobeyed.

When he finally comes to you, pet him, make much of him, make him think that he has done a very clever thing by coming. It is not a bad plan to have something which he will like to eat in your pocket, with which to reward him when he obeys. Continue this course, first dropping the check cord, and after awhile removing it, until he answers the call instantly. Then begin gradually to substitute the whistle for the voice, at first whistling and speaking and then dropping the voice altogether.

You should never use your voice when in the fields to call your dog. In the first place, it is very annoying to your companion to be forced to listen to the noise you will make when the dog is any distance away, but the most important reason is that all game birds hate the sound of the voice as they hate nothing else, and when they hear it get restless and will not lie well.

The next step is to teach the dog to lie down when spoken to, and the conventional order is "Down charge" or "Charge." I use the word "Drop" as being simpler, but that is absolutely unimportant, the only useful thing being to use only one order and not to change it, as changing only confuses the dog.—Harper's Round Table.

A Cougar in the Doorway.

"If I had left my house five minutes later one morning seven years ago, I should have stepped upon a seven foot cougar in the vestibule," said T. F. Drew, a mining man from the west. "It was not at a camp in the wilderness, but my house on Pike street in Seattle. It was a misty morning when I walked out at the door to go to my place of business. Five minutes later I heard several shots fired back of me in the direction of my house. It was not until my return home at noon that I learned that the shots which I had heard had killed a cougar in my doorway."

The beast had got lost in the fog and wandered into the town. He was first seen just after I had left the house by the motorman of an electric car, crouching by the wayside in readiness to spring at the car. The motorman sounded the gong and cracked on speed, and at that the cougar turned, ran into the vestibule of my house and crouched at the doorsill. The motorman hailed my neighbor, Mr. Chapin, now president of a leading bank, and told him about the cougar. Chapin stepped back into his house, got his Winchester rifle and shot the creature where he lay. It was rather an odd combination—a looming city, the electric cars and a cougar crouched in your doorway—but things quite as strange happen now and then in the towns that spring up overnight in the wilds.—New York Sun.

Outside the Tent.

"Well, Marlar," said the old man as he got down from the wagon seat where he had been patiently waiting, "did you see all the animals?"

"All but two," she said, with a sigh. "I hunted the longest time, but I couldn't seem to find the carnyvora and the egress. I expect they were the best part of the show too."—Washington Times.

SIGNS CARRIED BY MEN.

Some of the More Familiar Among Them and Some of the Curiousities.

The walking sandwich, the man between two billboards slung around the neck and hanging, one in front, the other behind, is not seen so much as he was. He was the most picturesque of all the walking sign carriers, and he was at one time the most commonly seen. His decline is doubtless due to a belief that an elevated sign, one carried above the head line, is of greater utility. The sandwich man was striking when you met him, but in a crowd you might miss him altogether; the elevated sign, carried above the heads of the people, is expected to be seen by all, and in one form and another it is now the sign most commonly carried.

There are, however, still some signs besides sandwich boards that are carried below the head line. Of these the most familiar is the coat sign, a coat with a sign painted upon it, worn by men who may perhaps remain near the establishment to which they belong, or who walk about. There is at least one man in New York who has worn a sign coat—a canvas coat in dry weather, a rubber coat in wet, with the same sign painted on each—daily for years. Wearing a sign coat is as much his regular occupation as writing is the occupation of the man who writes this brief article about signs that are carried.

There is another sign carried below the head—the valise sign, which scarcely comes within the purview of this article, for the reason that the carrier of the valise sign is in costume, and signs so carried by men whose curious outfit is relied upon to attract attention form a group by themselves. Still, perhaps mention may be made of the valise sign here. It is painted upon the flat side of an old fashioned alligator mouth valise, whose carrier walks about the street, visiting at intervals the store whence he comes. Pausing there for a moment on the sidewalk, he looks up intently at the sign over the door and then enters in, saluting forth again. Presently he starts on another round.

Another form of portable sign which depends in a measure upon the manner in which it is brought to the attention, though its carriers are not in uniform, is the painted block. The sign is painted upon the sides of a block of wood of about the shape and size of a small dressing suit case, and has a handle at the top. Such signs, to the number of four or five, are carried by two boys, who, to begin with, set them down upon the curbstone 15 to 20 feet apart. Then they begin moving the blocks one at a time from rear to front along the curbstone. The rear boy picks up his block and carries it along the sidewalk past the other blocks and puts it down upon the curbstone 20 feet ahead of the first block and then goes back for another. On the way to the rear he meets the other boy going to the front with a block which he will put down in the same manner, and so they keep going, forever picking up the last block and carrying it to the front and setting it down at the head and so working along the street.

Between the signs carried below the head and those carried above it there are some that are carried on or about the head. There is, for instance, the tall hat sign, which the carrier wears, with the sign painted upon it or painted upon something attached to it. Carried at night is the electric hat sign, with light from lamps fed by a storage battery shining through letters perforated in a tall hat. The illumination can be turned on or off at the will of the wearer of the hat as he walks. A day sign carried about the head is in the form of a transparency, the lower part of the frame resting upon the carrier's shoulders.—New York Sun.

Miraculous Cures.

Reginald of Durham, who wrote a chronicle some time before 1195, asserts that a young English nobleman was cured of leprosy at the shrine of St. Cuthbert in Durham cathedral, and that a young woman who had been for the space of three years an inmate of a large hospital established at Badale, near Darlington, in the diocese of Durham, was miraculously healed at the shrine of St. Godric at Finchdale, in the presence of Ralph Hagot, sheriff of the county, and Norman, parish priest of Hailtun.

It Went.

The new dynamite gun wheeled into position and a moment later there was a thundering report. The big gun had spoken.

"And what I say," remarked the engine of war as the smoke curled away from its muzzle, "goes! So!"—Cincinnati Tribune.

Metaphorically Speaking.

Skillet—So you traded your old horse for this one, did you? What did you get for it?

Skillet—Myself.—Twinkles.

There is no prettier sight in the world than that of a healthy, happy mother at play with her rosy and rolicking baby. It is a sight entirely too infrequent! Too often the baby is puny and peevish and the mother sickly, fretful, and nervous. The woman who neglects to take proper care of herself and who therefore suffers from weakness and disease of the organs of womanhood cannot be healthy and amiable. Her children will be puny and ailing and happiness will pass by on the other side. There is no reason why every woman should not be the healthy, happy mother of robust and playful children if she will take the proper care of herself. Proper care means, first of all, proper medicine for her ailments. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will make any woman strong and well in a womanly way. It cures all weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism. It prepares a woman for motherhood. It insures the health of the baby. It makes parturition easy and nearly painless. Over 90,000 women have testified to its virtues, in writing. Druggists sell it and have no substitute "just as good." The druggist who tries to force something else upon you is not an honest man. He is trifling with your life and happiness for the sake of a greater profit to himself.

Mrs. F. E. Forney, of Caras, Ky., writes: "I write to you again concerning my daughter, Mrs. D. H. H. She has taken two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She thinks the medicines did her a world of good. She was confined the 15th of February. Was sick about three hours, and now has a ten pound daughter, she got along nicely afterward. She says she never felt so well. She looks well and her complexion is clear."

The modern business world won't stand still or loiter to wait for the man who suffers from headaches, biliousness and dyspepsia, caused by constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Of druggists.

HANK TALBOT

Sticks to His Story About the Bentley Murder.

KIT CARSON TESTIFIES.

Says That Simons Told Him of His Intention to Kill Bentley—Court Adjourned Until Tomorrow Morning.

The Bentley murder case was resumed this morning promptly at 8 o'clock and continued until half-past twelve. It progressed much more rapidly than it did yesterday and several witnesses for the state were examined. Hank Talbot was the first witness, and told his story without becoming confused. The court room was again crowded with spectators, who appeared greatly interested in the case.

Simons did not appear much concerned until Kit Carson took the stand and testified to Simons having declared to him his intention of shooting Bentley. He seemed greatly agitated at the testimony.

On account of the attorneys demanding that the testimony be extended, court was adjourned at 12:30 p. m. until tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock in order to give the stenographers time to transcribe their records.

SELECTING THE JURY.

The important work of selecting a jury continued yesterday afternoon until after 4 o'clock, and consequently no evidence was taken until today.

Esaias Cantelmy said that he had formed an opinion as to the guilt of the defendant, which it would require evidence to change. He was challenged and by the court dismissed. Levi Lones, of Jackson township, was called in his place.

G. F. Getz, after an examination, was passed without challenge. O. E. Thomas, the produce dealer of this city, had formed an opinion as to the guilt of the defendant. He was challenged for cause and dismissed, and Walter Watt, of Lima, was called and sworn.

Ed Spicer and O. L. DeWeese were passed without challenge.

Levi Lones had sympathy for the defendant on account of his color. He was challenged for cause and dismissed by Judge Ritchie. Henry Knoble, of Jackson township, was called and sworn.

Walter Watt, of Lima, had formed an opinion as to the guilt of the defendant, and was dismissed. William Kolter, of Spencerville, was called, but on account of a physical infirmity was excused. John Kerr was then called and sworn.

Henry Knoble read an account of the murder as contained in the TIMES-DEMOCRAT at the time, and had formed an opinion that Simons was guilty. He was challenged for cause. When questioned by the judge he said that, as a juror, he could be controlled by the evidence produced. He was considered competent by the court.

John Kerr had conscientious scruples against capital punishment, and was challenged for cause and dismissed. Edward Faeth, of Marion township, was called and sworn, and passed without challenge. This made the twelfth juror as passed without challenge. The defendant's attorney had no examination to make, but asked for the dismissal of Ed Spicer on peremptory challenge, and Griffith Thomas, of Amanda township, was called in his place. Mr. Thomas was excused, as he did not believe in capital punishment. C. P. Sunderland, of Amanda township, was called, and passed without challenge.

The state for the present passed the peremptory challenge. G. F. Getz was dismissed by the peremptory challenge of the defendant, and Fred Tone, of Spencerville, was called, examined and passed with challenge.

Henry Knoble, by a peremptory challenge of the state, was dismissed, and Ed King called.

At ten minutes after three a recess of ten minutes was taken.

Mr. King had formed an opinion as to the guilt of the prisoner. He was challenged and dismissed. Howard Hyde, of Lima, was next called. He had conscientious scruples against capital punishment, and on challenge was dismissed.

John Begg, of Monroe township, was called. He had read an account of the murder in the papers, but had formed no opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant. He was passed without challenge.

Judge Ritchie then propounded the following question to each of the jurors:

"In the trial of this cause, if the testimony satisfies you that the defendant is guilty of murder in the first degree, would the fact that the defendant would be put to death by electricity, if convicted of that degree of crime, prevent you from finding the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree?"

The court received a negative answer from each juror.

Neither the state nor the defense had any other peremptory challenges and the complete jury, composed of the following men, were ordered sworn:

Daniel Harpeter, William Breece, Joseph Kreps, John Thompson, William Davidson, Otis Fraunfelter, W. A. Cochran, Jr., C. L. DeWeese, Edward Faeth, C. J. Sunderland, J. Fred Tone, John Begg.

WITNESSES SWORN.

The clerk called and swore the witnesses for the state and the defense, after which judge Ritchie stated that no testimony would be taken until today and dismissed the witnesses until 8 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Copeland asked that there be a separation of the witnesses. The request was granted by the court.

Mr. Ridenour then made the trial statement on the part of the state. He read the indictment which charged Simons with murder in the first degree for having killed William Bentley on the morning of March 23rd by shooting him with a revolver.

After reading the indictment he said that the state expected that the evidence would show, beyond a reasonable doubt, that all the allegations made in the indictment will be proven. The evidence will show that on the night preceding the killing of Bentley that there was a dispute between Bentley and Simons over Della Jones, who lived with Simons. Della Jones and Simons got into a quarrel and fought over the purchase of some beer. The evidence will show that Simons had a violin and that after their dispute he took the violin and disposed of it to a junk dealer in order to purchase a revolver. That he did purchase the revolver. That he made the threat that he intended to kill Bentley. It will be shown also that Simons went forth and sought Bentley. On meeting him he shot Bentley through the heart, killing him. It will be shown that the act was premeditated. That he deliberated over the act, secured the weapon and carried out his threats.

Mr. Rogers then made the trial statement for the defense. He said: "We, as the defendant in this case, intend to show to you that the prisoner at the bar is not guilty of murder in the first degree, or guilty of any known crime under the laws of the state of Ohio. We intend to show to you that this act of homicide was done in defense of his own life while being assailed by one of the most vicious, desperate and bloodthirsty villains that ever infested a community."

"We intend to show to you that on Monday evening, March 22, 1897, while in the house where he was lodging he was assaulted by Wm. Bentley with an open razor; that he would then and there have been cut to pieces by the bloodthirsty assassin had not Bentley Stroger interfered and prevented a collision."

"We intend to show to you that immediately after being thus assaulted he left the place in great fear and came up town and stopped at H. F. Reel's and put his guitar in pawn and took his revolver out of pawn in order to have it with him to protect his life if he should be again assaulted by Bentley."

"We intend to show to you that late in the evening he returned to his usual place of lodging, and, being afraid to enter his own room for fear

GOOD CAPTURE

Made by Police Sergeant Watts this Morning.

Horse and Buggy Stolen Last Night—Detective Roney Recovers the Stolen Property.

About 8 o'clock this morning sergeant Watts learned that a stranger was in the city endeavoring to sell a horse and buggy for $20, and inasmuch as the outfit was worth much more than that amount Watts suspected at once that it had been stolen.

The man who was trying to dispose of the rig proved to be P. E. Spitzer, of Kenton. He was found in the public square by sergeant Watts and was promptly arrested. He said his name was Smith, and that he was from Kentucky, and pleaded innocence of any offense, but Watts noticed that he was watching for an opportunity to run and guarded him closely until he was safely landed behind the bars.

Detective Roney found the horse and buggy and took it in charge, and an hour later T. B. Baker, a farmer living six and a half miles northeast of Kenton, arrived to notify the police that his horse and buggy had been stolen during the night, and he thought they had been driven in the direction of this city. He identified the rig detective Roney had found, and also identified the prisoner as P. E. Spitzer, of Kenton.
